

On the 11th of March 2011 at 2:46 am Japan had a devastating earthquake. Firstly it all started when the North American Plate converged with the Pacific Plate. And there was so much friction that the Pacific plate sprung up and that caused a tsunami that came into land for 10 km in land.

The Earth quake was so powerful that buildings in Tokyo started swaying the earthquake took place in Sapporo. The tsunami was so high that it went over a 10 meter wall and it was pushing everything in it way some people had to climb on their houses roof. 10,000 people died on the first day. China had 700 after shocks.
